Muhammad Fiaez talks to reporters Thursday outside the condominium where he lives in Cherry Hill. Early Thursday morning, FBI agents searched the home and questioned Fiaez and his brother, Iqbal Hinjhara, both natives of Pakistan, but made no arrests. The FBI said the search was prompted by information developed in the investigation of the May 1 failed bomb planted in Times Square.

An ongoing investigation into the failed Times Square bombing led the FBI to search a home in Cherry Hill and a printing business in Camden's Cramer Hill on Thursday.

Officials said they collected physical evidence at the Cherry Hill condominium of Pakistani-born Muhammad Fiaez and Iqbal Hinjhara. Hinjhara, 49, owns Prompt Printing Press Inc. in Camden.

No one was arrested in either incident.

Authorities arrived at the Cherry Hill condo about 6:30 a.m., Fiaez said, and questioned him and Hinjhara, whom Fiaez described as his brother. Fiaez, 37, who says he's been in the Testimony wraps up at trial of Van Pelt

TRENTON — The federal government's case against a former Shore assemblyman accused of taking a $10,000 bribe from a supposed developer who turned out to be an FBI informant could go to the jury Monday.

The defense Thursday rested its case in the trial of the United States of America v. Daniel M. Van Pelt, and U.S. District Judge Joel A. Pisano dismissed the jury for the weekend. He directed the 12 jurors and three alternates to return to the Clarkson S. Fisher Federal Building and U.S. Courthouse Monday morning.

At that time, the panel will hear closing arguments by lawyers for the U.S. Attorney's Office and Van Pelt, and Pisano will deliver his jury charge, instructions about the laws applicable in determining whether a defendant is guilty or not. The case will then be handed over to the jury for a verdict.
